Artifact 1: Country Website Project (Jamaica)

Overview (1 - 2 paragraphs)

The project is meant to show the cultural heritage of Jamaica and many amazing aspects of the country. The website showcases these aspects in an organized manner and is informative to the viewer who is going through the pages of the website. The website gives off new insights about diverse cultures that are not too commonly known and educates viewers about these traditions.

Technology (1 - 2 paragraphs) HTML & CSS

Both HTML & CSS were used throughout the project. I used many divs to keep the website organized and easy to navigate for the user. With CSS, I customized the divs to have rounded borders using border-radius and also changed the colors of the border to separate different topics. I also used paragraphs and images to have visuals and descriptions for each section of the website.

Resources

Provide link(s) to the project.

A Taste of Jamaica

Ackee and Saltfish

Ackee and Saltfish is Jamaica's national dish, a savory combination of sliced codfish and ackee, a unique fruit with a crusty texture. The dish is typically sautéed with onions, tomatoes, scallions, and peppers, often with some lime juice. The ackee is usually served with fried dumplings. The dish is often served with fried dumplings, boiled plantain, or festival. It's a popular breakfast or dinner meal that captures the essence of Jamaican cuisine.

Oxtail

Oxtail is a flavorful Jamaican dish made from tender, slow-cooked oxtail simmered in a savory stew. The meat is cooked until it's fall-off-the-bone tender, with a rich broth made from a blend of spices, herbs, and morsels. Oxtail is often served with rice and peas, or with a side of boiled plantain, onions, and butter beans, adding sweetness and texture to the savory stew. Oxtail is typically served with rice and peas or fried dumplings which makes a satisfying meal that's a favorite in Jamaican homes and restaurants.

Jamaica: Culture & Traditions

Clothing

Jamaican clothing blends traditional styles with modern fashion. Historically, it was influenced by African heritage and colonialism, featuring vibrant colors and bold patterns. Today, Jamaican fashion reflects a mix of comfort and cultural expression, with influences from Bob Marley's Rastafarian style and global fashion trends. Bright colors, bold prints, and green and strawwear trends. Clothing often celebrates warmth, vibrancy, and creativity, from festive to everyday wear, embracing the island's creative spirit.

Music

Jamaican music is very influential, with Reggae being the most iconic genre, popularized by legends like Bob Marley. The lively Soca music originated in Trinidad and Tobago, which have shaped global music trends. Jamaican music often has a rhythmic beat and lyrical content that reflects the culture and history of the island. It's a powerful way to influence modern artists worldwide. With its rhythmic beats and cultural roots, Jamaican music is a vibrant expression of the island's identity and spirit.

Religion

The most popular religion in Jamaica is Christianity. The largest denominations are Protestant, including Baptist, Anglican, and Methodist. Other religions include Roman Catholicism, Hinduism, and Islam. Rastafarianism holds significant cultural influence, particularly in music and spirituality. While Rastafarianism has followers make up a smaller portion of the population, the island also has smaller communities practicing Islam, Hinduism, and Buddhism, reflecting its diverse religious community.
